PILFERING is becoming so common, that it behoves families, gentlemen travelling, and others to adopt those measures which may as much as possible contribute to prevent and detect it. In the article of linen or cotton apparel, silk and cotton stockings, table linen &c, this cannot be better effected than by marking such property with CLARKE'S INDELIBLE PERMANENT INK, which from a test of 50 years, is found to be an improvement on the common durable or permanent Ink, and much superior to any of those Inks which are used without a preparation.
A fresh lot of the above Ink just received per Sharon, at No 13 Tremont Row by N. D. COTTON. y sept 12

SECOND SET OF PUNCH QUADRILLES, with the famous VALSE DE JUDY. Note. The rapturous delight with which admiring millions have greeted my own portrait, has induced me to present to the world the likenesses of the beloved partner of my bosom and the infant pledge of our affections; and I do entreat those gentlemen who lend a "countenance" to quadrilles, they never composed, that they will for once allow their love of notoriety to remain dormant for a while, and not endeavor to rival in beauty the portraits of those beings nearest and dearest to the heart of
"PUNCH."

EVENING TRANSCRIPT.

THURSDAY EVENING, DEC 14.

ENCYCLOPÆDIA OF THE CHINESE LANGUAGE. A late number of the "Chinese Repository," published in Macao, China, informs us of a valuable work, the prospectus of which has been published in London, that will serve to give much informatioin upon a language which more than any other, is confusing to the learner, and especially peculiar in the diversity of its dialects. The work will be a key to the Phonetic system of the Chinese; and the characters will be arrayed according to the pronunciation; each family of words to be preceded by a distinct article, critically discussing the origin of the phonetic character, its pronunciation, derivation, &c. The colloquial expressions of the language will be given in this new Enclyclopædia—a matter of some consequence, because in China the language of every day life, is held in no esteem, and never committed to paper. The author, J. M. Callery, states, that: "as every person that goes to China, will find that he has at first more need of speaking than writing, and as a knowledge of the vernacular contributes greatly to the understanding of books, we think that practical utility ought to prevail over prejudices, and that we shall give additional value to our work by enriching it with all the expressions in general use. Some persons will be well pleased to find that we have collected all the terms that the Christian religion has appropriated to the expression of its doctrines in Chinese, which would be sought for in vain in any dictionary hitherto published."

Our readers who know aught of the difficulty of acquiring the Chinese language—those especially who have the missionary spirit, and are desirous of sending ministerial ambassadors to the country to "break the bread of life" to the people, will perhaps be glad to know of the aid to be given by this contemplated work, and, to get an inkling at the same time that it is well for the missionary to learn the actual dialect spoken in the division where he is to labor, and not to do as we happen to know a clergyman once did, who spent a year and a half in acquiring the Chinese language as he thought, and after all, found he had learned the wrong dialect, thus wasting the missionary funds and much time into the bargain!

The basis of M. Callery's production is to be found, as is stated, in a wonderful and very voluminous publication little known to the world, and only to a few of the learned. This is a work in 130 volumes—a monument to the fame of the Emperor who projected it. The following account of the work itself may be interesting to the curious. We copy it from the Repository.

Kanghi, the greatest Emperor, and perhaps the most learned man, that China ever knew, seeing that in his day there existed no work embracing all the riches of the language, in the cultivation of which he found such boundless delight, and in which he left such fine compositions, conceived the design of erecting in the midst of the vast field of Chinese philology, a literary monument that should render his reign famous to all succeeding ages. With this view, he assembled in his palace the most distinguished literati of the empire, and laying before them all the works that could be got, whether ancient or modern, he commanded them carefully to collect all the words, allusions, forms and figures of speech, of which examples might be found in the Chinese language of every style; to class the principal articles according to the pronunciation of the words; to devote a distinct paragraph to each expression, and to give in support of every paragraph several quotations from the original works.

Stimulated by the munificence as well as by the example of the Emperor, who reviewed the performances of every day, seventy-six literari assembled at Peking, labored with such assiduity, and kept up such an active correspondence with the learned in all parts of the empire, that at the end of eight years the work was completed (1711) and printed at the public expense, in one hundred and thirty thick volumes!

In the preface to this elaborate and erudite work written by KANGHI himself, and considered as a model of simplicity coming from an oriental pen, the Emperor says:

"In the 43d year of my reign, and in the 12th month, I opened the palace Yü-ying, and there convoked the doctors of the academy to assist me in thoroughly revising the work. The labors of each day were first submitted to me, and then put into the hands of the engravers. At last, in the 50th year of my reign, and in the 10th month, the work was completely finished, and consisted of 106 books, containing above eighteen thousand sheets. It comprises all that the ancients and moderns have written, little as well as great; so that dictionaries, even the most extensive, there is none to be compared to this.

"When the work was finished, the doctors came in a body to request that I would write the preface. I have considered that from the beginning of this undertaking to the present day eight years have elapsed, and that, during a long succession of winters and summers, great have been the efforts made to complete the work. Notwithstanding my manifold occupations, I have had the satisfaction of devoting to this object nearly all the leisure hours of every day. In the beginning, I warned the doctors that a great work destined to embrace all our literature, ancient and modern, could not be executed in less than ten years. After a period somewhat shorter we have finished the compilation of this universal work. But would it have been possible to terminate it so soon, if we had not combined the efforts of every person capable of assisting us in the undertaking? I have therefore deemed it advisable to inscribe at the beginning of the work, the names of all the doctors who have contributed to its publication."

It can hardly be doubted that the "Encyclopedia" of Mr Callery, will be a benefit to Europe, and to all interested in philology whose tastes or interests lead them to study the Chinese language, as the writer in the Repository observes: "the extraordinary events of recent occurence in the East, in all probability will make the Celestial Empire an object of universal interest, and give a powerful impulse to the study of its language and literature."

CONGRESS. The Washington correspondent of the Journal of Commerce, under date of the 11th inst, writes:

The proceedings of Congress, are unimportant except to parties conncerned as office seekers, and excepting also the light which they throw on the future. The strong, steady, compact, drilled majority of the House, will be met with as steady an opposition in the Senate. The Executive stands opposed to both.

The House has difficulty in launching its boat. The rules, as you will see, are still undetermined, unadopted.

It was supposed that the Speaker would, according to custom, announce the Committees to-day But he was unable to do so, for the obvious reason that the new members of the House were "too numerous to mention." I would recommend a resort to phrenology by the Speaker, as he has no aim for fame. How else can he cast Committees with such new and raw and unheard of material.

The Committee of Elections was announced, consisting of Messrs Payne, Alabama; Ellis, New York; Chapman, Virginia; Douglas, Illinois; Newton, Virginia; Davis, Kentucky; Hamlin, Maine; Scheneck, Ohio; Elmen, New Jersey.

The papers relative to the case of Messrs Botts and Goggin, were referred to Committee on Elections.

Mr Barnard called up the subject of his Protest, and Mr Gilmor's amendment striking out the Protest, and recording the other facts of the case, was adopted, after some debate. Yeas 124; Nays 84.

A motion was made for the adoption of rules, when Mr Dromgoole moved as an additional rule, that no paper containing any extraneous matter should be spread on the journal of the House. A long debate took place on this question, which was not concluded when the House adjourned.

The Washington correspondent of the Express, under date of the 12th inst, furnishes that paper with the following doings of the Senate:

The Senate, this morning, were for a short time in session. Mr Benton announced the death of his colleague, Lewis F. Linn, and Mr Crittenden bore his testimony to the good qualities of the deceased. Both eulogies were sincere and eloquent.

The committees were announced in the House of Representatives, and the following gentlemen are the chairmen:

Ways and Means, Mr Mackay, of North Carolina.
Foreign Affairs, C. J. Ingersoll, of Pennsylvania.
Judiciary, Mr Wilkins, of Pennsylvania.
Claims, Mr Vance, of Ohio.
Roads and Canals, Mr Owen, of Indiana.
Naval Affairs, Mr Wise, of Virginia.
Post office and Post roads, Mr Hopkins, of Virginia.
Manufactures, Mr Adams, of Massachusetts.
Agriculture, Mr Debery.
Militia, Mr Deane, of Ohio.
Revolutionary Claims, Mr R. D. Davis, of New York.
Private Land Claims, Mr Cross, of Arkansas.
Revolutionary Pentioners, Mr Rathbun.
Commerce, Mr Holmes, of South Carolina.
Territories, Mr A. V. Brown, of Tennessee.
Indian Affairs, Cave Johnson, of Tennessee.
Military affairs, Mr Haralson, of Georgia.

The House were engaged again in amending the Journal on motion of Mr Barnard.

There was no action upon the motion in consequence of the announcement of the death of Dr Linn, the House adjourned at an early hour.

The Senate adjourned without acting upon any nominations. Our Washington correspondent assures us that nearly the whole lot of appointments will be rejected, except, perhaps, that of Mr Upshur. Henshaw will be thrown overboard by a strong vote.

What Bostonian would ever dream of going to Salem, the olden "land of witches," for the "Mansion of Happiness," or what denouncer of the doctrine of perfect earthly happiness would expect to have the very mansion of bliss itself, brought from Salem to Boston, by the locomotive power of steam, and, by hand carriage into the bargain?

A gentleman from Salem nevertheless, brought the "Mansion of Happiness" to us yesterday morning with all the indwelling spirits of the abode—Prudence, Honesty, Humility, Truth, Sincerity, Temperance, Gratitude, Justice, and Piety. In presenting it to us, he looked as cheerfully as though he had never found the "Stocks," the "House of Correction," the "Pillory," or the "Whipping Post" as obstacles in the way of his progress towards the Mansion. Unluckily, however, WE do not possess the only "open sesame" to this castle of Happiness. Gold has turned many a key, and the potent power of the mint's coinage will furnish to all aspirants sure possession of a similar mansion.

But, to do away with all mystery, we must explain to our young friends that we are writing of a new and pleasant game for their Christmas and New Year's holidays, on the board of which are indicated by drawings, the qualities and places mentioned above. It can be played by several persons with a tetotum and counters, with which they "spin the way" to the "Mansion of Happiness" (the name of the play) and count up the routes and distances. It is a neat arrangement in design and execution; is published by W. & S. B. IVES of Salem, and will probably be for sale by our Boston booksellers. As we have said, it is an agreeable game, and may be made to inculcate a true moral lesson. It will be a desideratum for the coming season of gifts and remembrances.

DANGEROUS. When the late snow fell to the ground, and remained on the pavé where some householders neglected to have it properly removed, it was observed that the boys used the sidewalks for coasts, and thus making them perfect Glaciarums, endangering the progress of all foot passengers. We have heard various complaints of this nature from numerous individuals, not only on account of the slippery pathway, but especially from the danger of being run over, and having the legs broken by the sleds, the speed of which cannot well be resisted by the boy, nor always avoided by the promenader. The City Marshal should look to this; boys should not be permitted to coast on the sidewalks. Let them improve the season for the wholesome exercise on the Common, or the middle of the streets, but never resort to the rightful province of the foot passenger. Let them sled where they endanger nobody's safety but their own. A hint to housekeepers ought to obviate the difficulty at once. If they would always keep the front of their houses free from snow, there would be no inducement to the thoughtless and merry-hearted urchin to bring the sled upon the sidewalk.

A COAT FOR HENRY CLAY. Mr Francis Mahon, a practical tailor, and fashioner, of Philadelphia, is now in Baltimore, and has with him a very beautiful dress coat, made expressly for and designed as a present to Mr Clay. It is thoroughly and emphatically a domestic article. The cloth was manufactured in the Middlesex factory, Lowell, Mass, from superior American wool. It has a substantial body, is jet black, presents an elegant finish, and is altogether a rich garment. The material throughout, aside from our partiality for American manufactures, will hold a close comparison with the best English goods imported into our markets. On the back pad of the inner lining is quilted, very handsomely, a figure of our national emblem, the American Eagle. The lining of the right breast is tastefully embroidered with needlework, amid which is admirably and significantly portrayed, the same old coon. On the left, is a quilted heart, together with other appropriate emblems. The interior of the garment is lined entirely with silk manufactured in Philadelphia. This is inlaid with American cotton, and quilted in the form of diamonds. [Baltimore Patriot.

Is it not about time for the practical shoemakers, hatters, &c, to "wake up?"

NEW VOLUME OF MUSIC. Mr Oliver Ditson, has performed a most acceptable service to the Musical world, by the issue of a cheap and most excellent volume of Music, under the title of THE MUSICAL LIBRARY, being a collection of Vocal and Instrumental pieces, original and selected, Songs, Glees, Marches, Waltzes, Organ Pieces, Variations, &c, from the works of Beethoven, Von Weber, Mozart, Rossini, Rinck, Hunten, Neukomm, Bishop, Callcott, Webb, Donnizetti, Pleyel, Moschelles, Spohr, Cooke, and a host of other eminent composers, forming a complete assortment of rare productions, which, if purchased at the usual rates, could not be procurred for twenty dollars, and which is here offered for a mere tithe of that sum, in a neat and convenient volume, beautifully printed on fine paper, giving sixty-four Vocal pieces, and thirty-five Instrumental. This work was edited by Messrs Lowell Mason and George J. Webb.

DISEASE FROM EATING ROAST TURKEY! A family of six persons, in this vicinity, having recently partaken of a delicious and apparently healthy turkey, were all seized during the succeeding night with violent commotions of the bowels and the usual troublesome effects of a dose of catharic medicine, which continued two days, accompanied with intolerable headache, chills, and weakness of the eyes. It is presumed that the animal had fattened upon some deleterious food, which had poisoned his substance. The family have recovered, yet as the disease may exist to a more alarming extent in other households, it seems worthy of notice.

EASTERN COME-OUTER-ISM AT PHILADELPHIA! Stephen S. Foster, an "Anti-Slavery lecturer from the East," has been disturbing a Friends' Meeting, in Philadelphia, by attempting to reply to the minister's sermon, abolitionally. He was put out—taken up—brought before the Mayor—required to give bail in $250 for his appearance the following morning—refused to give the bond—asked to be sent to prison—but a gentleman insisted upon being security for him. The great Put-Outer, although held to answer for his "Come-Outer" freak, was subsequently discharged, the Society declining to proceed against him.

VIEUX TEMPS. The following is an extract of a letter from a young gentleman of this city—himself a skilful and pleasing violinist—who is at present on a visit to New York: "Vieux Temps' success last night was most decided. He had an immense house, (full 1200 persons) and played with perfection—better than I have ever heard him Artôt and Ole Bull were present, and embraced and shook hands warmly with Vieux Temps. In fact, everything went off in the best way possible. He gives his next Concert on Friday."

THE "STABAT MATER" AND THE "BATTLE OF WATERLOO" are to be performed at a grand Musical Festival, to be given at the Tabernacle, in New York, this evening, the principal parts to be sustained by Signora Castellan, Signor Antognini, and Mr Brough. "The Battle of Waterloo," of which the only copy in this country was brought from Europe for this special occasion—is represented to be a composition of great brilliancy, power, and expression. It is Beethoven's.

CURIOUS SUPERSCRIPTION. The following is a verbatim copy of the address of a letter received at the New York Post Office, by the Acadia:

Mrs Margaret McGill or hir suns quntan Mc Gill or Samul McGill if nut in New York, Found in Cours of Dight days—Bay the Desesed quntan Mc Gill ears, Can lift this letter—or pleas to pout this Derection into the New York paper—Six dayes if nut found out. Forwarded to Quibeck in Cannody and advertised in the newspaper—America with speed)

PRINTING INSTEAD OF WRITING. We learn from the Advertiser that Charles Thurber Esq, one of the County Commissioners for Worcester county, has invented a machine, by which one may print instead of writing. It is intended for the use of "the blind, the nervous, or the unskilful," and it is said that Dr Howe, of the institution for the blind here, has expressed a high opinion of its advantages for the former class.

ON DIT. There is an on dit circulating through the city, that MR BRISTOW is going to winter in New York. We can, with propriety, contradict this rumour, inasmuch as it was only yesterday that this gentleman called at our Office, with cash, to pay his monthly advertisement, which he desires to be renewed. This information may be of importance to the many bad writers in our "literary emporium," to whom we recommend a speedy visit at No 86 Washington street.

MATCH MAKING. An intelligent manufacturer of sulphur matches informs us that this business is now worth $1,000,000 in the United States. A few years since they were all imported from Europe, principally from Germany. Now we export several hundred thousand dollars worth to the West Indies and South America. [Cincinnati Patriot.

So, it seems that matches can be made in some places as well as others.

The Knickerbocker, for December, was this morning issued by Messrs Otis Boarders & Co. This closes the 22d volume of this popular Monthly.

Redding & Co have received, A History of All Christian Sects and Denominations, with an account of Atheists, Deists, Jews, Mahometans, Pagans, &c, by John Evans. Also; The New Mirror, for the present week, with an exquisite engraving.

The New York correspondent of the Providence Journal aptly styles the newsboys "the brief chroniclers of the times." The same correspondent says that Charlotte Cushman's voice is as coarse and reedy as the low notes of a clarionet.

"GREAT PLAINNESS OF SPEECH." Dr Bacon, in his "Wanderings on the Seas and Shores of Africa," pronounces Mr Roberts the Governor of Liberia, a murderer and most shameless liar and cheat.

THE MUSEUM. This evening Mr Wyatt is to appear in the character of Grandfather Whitehead, in the drama of that name, in which he made a hit some four weeks since.

Dr Lardner and his Lyceum are at Philadelphia, between which city and New York a new line of steamers is to commence running early in the spring.

"What wonder-working machines these Railroads are!" exclaims Jo Sykes, after having been carred from Providence to Boston in a couple of hours.

The consecration of the Cathedral of Versailles took place lately. The building was commenced one hundred years ago.

A Concert will be given, this evening, at the Tremont Temple, for the benefit of the Massachusetts Abolition Society.

SIR GILES OVERREACH, Mr Booth, at the National, this evening.

MR KNOOP AND MADAME DE GONY at the Melodeon, THIS evening.

THIS is Thanksgiving Day in New York.

We are sorry to hear that Inman, the artist, lies dangerously ill at New York. He is not only an honor to his country as an artist, but to mankind for the noble qualities of his heart. [Post.

THE BOSTON POST OFFICE. We understand that Mr Greene, the Postmaster, proposes to remove the Post Office from its present central and unrivalled location, down into the dining room of the new Exchange. [Bay State Democrat.

HIGH COURTS. "They tell about going into higher courts," exclaimed a chap, after climbing five flights of stairs at the Court House the other day; "but I'll be hanged if I should want to ascend higher than this." [Bay State Democrat.

POMEROY & Co's EXPRESS ROBBED. The Journal of Commerce of yesterday says: We regret to learn that Pomeroy & Co's Express was robbed this morning of a large amount of money and other valuables. Their trunk containing all the packages for brokers in this city together with various other parcels, was taken from the steamboat Utica soon after its arrival at the wharf, and nothing has since been ascertained concerning it.

MELANCHOLY ACCIDENT. We learn from our Falmouth correspondent that a melanbholy accident took place in that town, on the 6th instant. About 12 o'clock on that day, Mr Reuben Swift, was found dead in his barn, lying on the floor. It is supposed he fell backwards from a ladder on which he ascended, for the purpose of raking down some hay. When found, his neck was broken, and life extinct. Mr Swift was late of New Bedford, and is brother of Hon Elijah Swift, of Falmouth. [Barnstable Patriot.

DEATH OF HOSEA SPRAGUE. We regret to learn, by a gentleman from Plymouth, that our old and eccentric acquaintance, Hosea Sprague, died in that town on Saturday last. He had been ill for about a week, and attempted to cure himself, and took an extraordinary dose of castor oil for a cold. He was a bachelor, and lived with a brother who is said to be almost as eccentric as himself. When his disease became so serious that he thought it necessary to send for a physician, he was past recovery. Our readers have heretofore had much amusement from extracts which we have copied from his "Chronicle." [Courier.

HENRY RUSSELL, per se, at the last accounts, was at Charleston on his way to New Orleans. He is making a great deal of music and money in the South. Russell is an original genius in song, in speechifying, and in anecdote. Some time ago, he sung with great feeling, "Woodman, spare that tree," in one of the small Southern towns. At the close, a long, lank Southerner rose, to the height of seven feet, and, with a great deal excitement, asked of Mr Russell, "and did they spare that tree?" Russell was nonplussed for a moment—looked at him with surprize, but suddenly replied, "Yes, sir, they did spare that tree." The other cooled off at once, replying, "I am glad of it—for I'll have a snuff box made out of that tree the next time I go to New York." [New York Herald.

FITCHBURG RAILROAD. About a thousand persons attended the convention at Brattleboro' on the 5th, for the purpose of extending the road to that place; Hon George Grennell, president, and Messrs Walker, Thompson and H. W. Cushman, secretaries. The greatest enthusiasm prevailed, and the meeting was ably addressed by A. Crocker Esq, of Fitchburg, Mr Derby, of Boston, John Prentiss Esq, of Keene, and several others. Committees were appointed to draft resolutions, collect statistics, &c. The citizens of Brattleboro' threw open their doors to the delegates and entertained them in a most hospitable manner. The convention was adjourned to meet at Athol on the 21st inst. The Greenfield Gazette states that funds having been raised for the purpose, Mr Hoit, of Deerfield, is engaged in surveying a proposed route from Grout's tavern in Montague into Greenfield.

A BATTLE WITH A BEAR. The following skirmish actually occurred with two men and a huge black bear a few weeks since, in the town of Sandgate, Vt. The inhabitants of said town had quite a number of their sheep killed, as they supposed, by the foxes; and one Mr Sherman and another person, (name not known to us) took their guns and their dogs, and went in pursuit of the sheep-slayers. They had not been out but a short time ere they saw a bear's track. The dogs were immediately put on the chase, and but a few moments elapsed before they were heard to bark. Mr S. and his friend pursued on in the direction of the alarm in "hot haste," and in a short time they were in the presence of a large black bear, sitting on his hind legs, feeling no doubt annoyed at their presence and the saucy dogs. Now came the tug of war. Mr S. snapped his gun at the bear several times, but it did not take fire. The bear supposing they were poking fun at him, made toward them, determined on revenge. He came so close that they were obliged to defend themselves with their guns; and thus while preventing the bear from receiving them to his warm embrace, he seized the muzzle of Mr S.'s gun in his mouth. Mr S. snapped his gun again and it exploded, tearing off the bear's under jaw. The other man fired his gun at the bear, killing him instantly. Thus ended the fearful combat with the bear. He weighed about four hundred pounds. This makes the fifth bear that has been killed at Sandgate within a few weeks. [Washington Co Post.

WILL BE PUBLISHED TOMORROW MORNING, Dec 15, in advance, for the Holidays, the most magnificent periodical ever issued.
GRAHAM'S MAGAZINE
Of Literature and Art, January, 1844

A Splendid Original American Picture, painted by Thos Sully, for the Proprietor of Graham's Magazine, and engraved by J. Sartin, for Jan. 1844; with other splendid embellishments, and 20 different articles by the best writers in the country. All rivalry with "Graham" is utterly annihilated by this triumphant issue, and our feeble imitators must hide their diminished heads before its unsurpassed beauty and merit.

Periodicals in this style of excellence will soon put a stop to all efforts to humbug people in the country with trashy magazines, with old engravings, and will place the periodical literature of America above that of Europe. We have the talent in this country, as well as the taste and capital, and "Graham" intends to bring them out, and show that we are as far above the Old Word in enterprise in literary matters as we are in the science of machinery and government.

"Who Reads an American Book?" was once asked by a sneering British Critic, and the answer is now given by articles of Paulding, Cooper, Bryant, Longfellow, &c, stolen monthly from "Graham," for the English Magazines.

Terms, $3 per ann, in advance; single copies, 25 cts.

COUNT DE LAPORTE respectfully informs the ladies and gentlemen of the city of Boston, that the second quarter of his course of tuition in French, will commence on the 20th of this month. Two new classes for beginners will be formed—one for ladies and the other for gentlemen; and pupils will be admitted into several other classes more or less advanced in the study of the language. This will be the best opportunity for obtaining admission into Count De Laporte's class, his time being so completely occupied as not to permit the formation of new ones.

A few more young gentlemen and misses may be received into his younger classes.

Count De Laporte takes this opportunity to inform the inhabitants of Roxbury that, having been called there to teach a class of young ladies, applications will be received in that town at Miss Harraden's, opposite the Washington School House, where the terms of admission will be made known. iseoptc dec 12

EVENING TRANSCRIPT.

THURSDAY EVENING, DEC 14.

THE GYPSIES: WHO ARE THEY? The following extracts are taken from a long article in the London Christian Examiner; they are from a gentleman of great literary research. Whoever has read Barrow's Bible in Spain will at once recognize the character of the Gypsies, Gitanas, or Rhomas—all of which are synonymous terms:

And whom have we seen, with the mark of fugitive imprinted on his brow? yea, with that more infamous brand mark of vagabond also; but one who strongly resembles, while yet he widely differs from, the descendant of the patriarch Judah! He who has travelled on the continent of Europe, has met with him in every European land. He who has visited Asia has met with him there. He who has visited Africa and America has met with him there. And what British, or Scottish, or Welsh, or Irish child, knows not the swarthy hue, remembers not the dark and piercing eye of the ever restless, wandering tribes of the Gitana, or, as they are called in this country, the Gypsy race? a race, whose origin none can tell you, and of which none more ignorant than themselves. Ask them whence they come? They know not. From whom they sprang? They know not. What is their religion? They have none. Whom do they worship? They are without God in the world. What is their language? That of the nations among whom they sojourn. Are they Jews? They tell you they are not. Are they Gentiles? No. Like the Jews, they are wanderers, without a home. Like the Jews, they are mingled among all people, and yet distinct from all; despised, suspected, persecuted, and hated; without a country, without a king; with nationality unbroken either by time, persecution, or admixture of blood; with a spirit of clanship or brotherhood that nothing can quench; with a distrust of the Gentiles that nothing can overcome.

But the Jew is a worshipper of Jehovah—the Gitana, or Rhoma, knows him not. The Jew professes, and venerates, and studies, the ancient oracles of revealed truth—the Rhoma scarcely knows that such oracles exist. The Jew would rather die than defile himself with what to him is ceremonially unclean—the Rhoma will feed on the most loathsome food, even that which is torn, or which hath died of itself, eating his defiled bread among the Gentiles, fain to fill his belly with the husks that swine do eat. How, then, can these wanderers be of common origin? The Jew, though cursed, has been still entrusted with the oracles of God, and has therefore retained a knowledge of his name and a zeal for his worship; a knowledge of the language of his forefathers, of the history of the country from whence he has been driven; and a hope, an undying, unquenchable hope of one day returning to that land, around which hover all his thoughts, and whose very dust is dear to him as the gold of Ophir. But the Israelite was sent forth to wander without the written word, and consequently he has, and must have, lost all trace of the name and character of the God of his fathers; all knowledge of the country from whence he came; of the the parental source from whence he sprang; of the language in which his father spoke; of the meaning of his judicial wanderings; and of the glorious hopes that the world, the promise, and the oath of the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, hold out to the scattered tribes, whether of the house of Judah or of Israel.

Of these mysterious wanderers, be they whom they may, (and who they are I presume not to say, although I firmly believe that they represent the house of Israel) there are not fewer than three millions scattered over the face of the earth, and of the well-known tribes of Judah and Benjamin about ten millions more—each testifying, though in different ways, to the truth of a faithful but offended God.

MOBILE. The Advertiser, of December 1st, speaking of the whather at Mobile, says: "We have had such a November, in the way of weather, as perhaps few of the present inabitants of this city have ever seen. The month has closed without having a single frost, unless we are greatly mistaken, and the temperature of the weather hae been, a great portion of the time, uncomfortably warm. We had frosts in October, but none, if we remember rightly, during the month just passed."

BRIDGE ACROSS THE OHIO. Memorials are in circulation at St Louis and other places in the West, asking Congress to provide for the construction of a wire suspension bridge across the Ohio, at the junction of the National Road with said river. The estimated expense is $130,000. According to the plan designated, there is to be a space of fifty feet between the bridge and the tops of the highest steamboat pipes, at an ordinary stage of water, rendering it free from any objection on the ground of obstruction to navigation.

Richard P Kenham Esq, the newly appointed British Minister to the United States, is one of the fifteen children of the late Admiral Sir Thomas P, and was cousin of the late Gen Edward M. Pakenham; who was slain in the battle of New Orleans, and was also cousin of the late Duchess of Wellington. He is 46 years old, and has been residing at Mexico several years as British Minister.

Mr H. S. Fox, the British Minister now resident at Washington, nephew of the celebrated Charles James Fox, has been inert, and rarely visible, even to his own countrymen. His official labors or influence have not been very efficient in promoting either friendly or hostile relations between the two nations. [Salem Gazette.

AN EAGLE SHOT. We saw last night a noble American Eagle, which was shot in Washington county, about 18 miles from this city, on Saturday last, by Mr H. R. Wilson. The unusual visiter was observed for several days soaring around the neighborhood. Once it was seen to pounce upon a lamb, which it carried away, apparently without difficulty. It also was seen to pounce upon and bear away a large Turkey Cock. The sportsmen of the vicinity were on the alert for several days without being able to shoot the bird until on Friday; its place of going to roost was watched, and on Saturday morning Mr Wilson shot it with a rifle. It measured over eight feet from tip to tip on the wings, and the nails of its claws were two inches and a half in length. It was one of the largest specimens of the American Eagle we have ever seen described. [Pittsburg Chronicle.

U. S. CIRCUIT COURT: Before Judge Betts. Jesse Hoyt vs Edward Curtis. The Plaintiff, as former Collector of the port, claims $1799 and interest, being ½ per cent commissions on bonds in the Custom House at the time of his leaving, and which have since been collected by defendant. The Court, in its charge, stated that the Collectors were formerly paid in fees, but the principle was altered, and they now receive a fixed salary. The pay of Mr Hoyt, as collector, was $4000 per annum, and he cannot sustain the present action unless he is able to show that he did not receive that amount. Mr Hoyt, in reply to the charge, said that the commission was intended as a reward for faithfully giving up the books of his office. The Court answered that it would be a dangerous idea to establish that a collector or other public officer must be paid for surrendering the books and papers which had been confided to him. The jury found for the defendant. [New York Express.

FOR COUGHS, COLDS AND CONSUMPTIONS. IMPROVED SAFETY-VALVE AIR-TIGHT STOVES. These Stoves are constructed of the best materials and workmanship, of four sizes Of each size there are the Pyramid, the Ornamental and the Plain. To each is appended Mears's improved safety-valve, which is at once ornamental and highly useful, entirely precluding the possibility of escape of smoke or gas during the ordinary process of combustion; but on the generating of an explosive gas, the valve instantly rises and presents an aperture five inches in diameter for its escape; after which it inevitably resumes its position as perfect as before, not being liable to be thrown from its seat, and thus, by the admission of a current of air, hasten the combustion of the fuel and fill the room with smoke during the night, or otherwise.
Also, the improved ARNOTT or COAL AIR-TIGHT, with internal columns for the circulation of heated air, which, for convenience, comfort and economy, is not surpassed by any Stove yet before the public; together with an extensive assortment of the most approved coal and wood COOKING STOVES. Manufactured and for sale at lowest prices by D. PROUTY & CO,
