Dublin. 26th Jan<sup>y</sup>.

All my love on. have you begun to think I have forgotten you? No. your letter says not. do believe you.

In the first place Sally has been in distress to know if you will write for the better. to the world because I left a note for the landlady & she was to let you have it.

I rejoice to hear you are getting on well. & satisfactorily. to yourself I have been so thoroughly busy that I have been unable to write.
I have been very poorly for with influenza. so that my Spain time has been shortened by being obliged to lie in bed. You know how terrible this is to one actually disposed as I am. I will forgive my not having written. I am getting better under the influence of homeopathy. I hope soon to feel like a new bird. I am leaving here on Friday for Liverpool where I am going to act for four nights & two in Cork. Then, it is possible that I may go to Belfast & from thence to Scotland.

Will you send my best love to Dillon. I told him how much I thank him for the tobacco. I often think of him as I am preparing to see him was very good of him to send it to me. I wish when he is sending for any more. he would send me some too. for if I go to Murree for a short month. I shall want a quantity: I never to hear that he is ill. he is not over strong I think. & you must prize him much. for the good are scarce. I need not tell you, though. to value him.

I know how much you do so.
Ask Wallace to ask Knowlton for a copy of "Conan Cherry" from town & you play the part. it will do you a great deal of good. It has been played at the Olympic. Thank you for the scraps. but dear you make your c's & your r's so alike that sometimes I find them difficult to read. If they are of a more humorous kind I should be glad. Now light & less obscure for the medicatio You understand what I mean am certain I will let me have such. Forster is very good. I must be in hurry to send ours to Liverpool against I go back.

Miss Wags sends her best to to you - when I write to Forster I will remember what you want I will write to Miss Prosbury. Some I recollect waiting for six months for a letter from her. My memory is kept green! God bless you. Your son affec
